PLANTING HOPE

A promise for a greener & healthier future

World Environment Day is a reminder to care for our surroundings, nurture the present, and cultivate a shared sense of responsibility.

In Assam, where lush greenery already surrounds the landscape, children and youth chose to make a lasting difference by planting fruit-bearing trees. Each tree planted was a symbol of hope, reminding the younger generation that small actions today can bear fruit tomorrow.

In Karnataka, Environment Day became a true community movement. Young and old came together to clear overgrown bushes and plant shade-giving trees that will benefit the entire village.

True community development begins when people come together with a shared purpose.

By contributing their time, resources, skills, and energy, communities can identify local needs and work collectively towards practical solutions that improve everyday life.

CEPHAS Foundation organized a felicitation program to honor the students who had passed board exams . In Panikhowa, 20 students were presented with a traditional Assamese Gamosa (towel), a certificate of appreciation, and a college bag as tokens of encouragement for the next phase of their educational journey.
